1102308	Matt was a wonderful TF - one of the best I've had at Yale. Sections were extremely engaging and thought-provoking, often raising as many questions as answers. Matt was extremely fair and helped me improve my writing.
1114855	Whatever Matt is being paid to TA, he should make twice that. By far the best section I've had at Yale--easily exceed the quality of many seminars I've taken. Matt is very helpful on papers, great at leading discussion, and--most importantly--kind. When I would get coffee with him to discuss assignments we would often talk for close to an hour, both about material in the course and also other fun topics in political theory and philosophy. Really cannot recommend him enough.
1121800	Matt was an excellent TF, especially for his first time around. He facilitated group discussion and made it easy for you to express your opinion, especially if you were a little bit unsure about what you were arguing. There was a good balance between trying to understand exactly what various authors were arguing, and interrogating their claims. He made himself incredibly available both over email and in person. It was a pleasure to be in Matt's section.
1122679	Matt was a good TA - I appreciated his extensive feedback on our weekly submissions, and his organization of our questions in section!
1133492	Matthew Shafer was the best teaching fellow I've had at Yale, hands-down. He's so dedicated and committed to the learning of his students, and volunteered his time to help us, above and beyond his call of duty. He was there for us when we emailed him at odd hours, and offered immense help, feedback and insight in our writing of essays. He was an attentive section leader who facilitated discussion sensitively and thoughtfully. Matt enhanced my learning in this class immensely. Not only that, he made this class deeply enjoyable and pleasurable. I can't be more grateful. Thank you Matt!
1133552	Strengths: - Extremely dedicated--went above and beyond in making himself available to students for guidance/responding to students' papers and reading responses - Very insightful seminar leader - Gave very useful feedback Room for improvement: - I think Matt can still improve his balance between participating and guiding a seminar such that the conversation flourishes
1135744	Matt was without a doubt the best TF I have had at Yale. His responses to our reading responses were thoughtful, thorough, and engaging, and I found it impressive that he had the time and wherewithal to write about fifteen of these responses a week. It showed an investment in his students that will serve him well in the future. In class, he was energetic and well-prepared. He would give a mini-lecture for the first ten minutes or so of class, and it would open up the material and clarify some of the more obscure points of the authors we read. I am extremely grateful for his teaching!

Matt was a great TF. Our discussions were always interesting, and he did a good job of making them discussion based rather than regurgitating material. Our reading responses were clearly read and integrated into the discussion, so we always spoke about what we had found most interesting. Matt is clearly passionate about the material, and did a great job leading the discussion.

Incredible feedback; Matt succeed at reaching out to his students in terms of organizing the course. He was accessible and responsive to the individual needs of students in a way that facilitated their learning. While his sections wavered in their focus at times, that, by no means, detracted from their productivity. We were very lucky to have him as our TF.

Matt Shafer was one of the best TFs I have had thus far at Yale. He was incredibly conscious of his own position to mediate discussion in section, and this made a huge difference, as toward the beginning of the semester he tended to dominate the discussion and analysis but eventually assumed the well-balanced role of mediating student discussion and responding to/putting forth ideas. I benefited hugely from the feedback he provided, which constantly pushed us to think more about our ideas and readings of the texts (he gave lengthy personal responses via email each week to every student's reading responses). He also offered incredibly insightful and helpful feedback on essay outlines and drafts and was very open and easy to meet with in office hours. He did a great job of making himself as available as possible to all of us, and it was always easy to reach him and discuss and receive feedback on ideas. Sections with Matt played a huge role in what I gained from this class, given that I felt the lectures by Prof Benhabib did not move enough past summarization of the texts, and thus I feel that I would have had a much less positive experience in this course if not for the fact that I had a great and very engaged TF.

1155764	Matt is the greatest TF I've had at Yale. He was truly a gem. I have never met any TF that is so personable and willing to help his students. He was incredibly flexible with his office hours and always made it a point to help the students.
1157646	Matt was a great TF. His comments on my papers were always helpful and definitely helped me improve my skills as a writer. During section, Matt did a great job of clarifying questions/themes from the lectures and readings, and allowing students to guide the discussion.

1197347	Strengths: gave lots of feedback on assignments. Made discussion section enjoyable. I really liked when we started getting discussion questions emailed out to us every week, so we knew what exactly to focus on. Weaknesses: Sometimes I felt that the feedback on assignments was unnecessarily long and complicated and could easily be simplified to a couple of sentences to mean exactly the same thing. I thought that the discussion sections could often seem very abstract, which was interesting because it was different than anything else at Yale for me; however, it could be difficult to follow at times. I sometimes wished that we had broken down the readings a bit more in discussion rather than discussing our opinions on it, as I felt like that would have potentially been more helpful.
1198967	Matt was probably one of the best TF's I've had. Explained all the concepts really well, facilitated discussion well, gave thoughtful and helpful feedback.
1202641	Matt was wonderful. Always gave abundant, helpful feedback on student work. Going to Matt's section was the best part of my week.
1213569	Matt was a really wonderful TA and a pleasure to learn from in our section. Week after week he synthesized our discussion questions into a challenging and thought-provoking section that significantly enriched our understanding of the course materials. I really looked forward to his section and felt that his teaching were a highlight of the course. Moreover, he provided extensive comments on each of our reading responses and papers, and I can tell he engaged with our written work in a very deep and thoughtful way.
